

GUIDED HIKE AT LETCHWORTH STATE PARK

Join ISSS for a guided hike at Letchworth State Park, where we will walk on nature trails and witness the beautiful autumn leaves changing colors. The park is often called the “Grand Canyon of the East” because of its fantastic geography. It is truly something to see. Come enjoy the natural beauty of western New York State. Hopefully, we will see leaves changing to spectacular shades of gold, orange and red! Bring food & beverages!

I understand that this is a physically challenging 11.25km hiking activity with the main purpose of hiking, not necessarily photo-taking and sightseeing. I agree to take part in the hike, knowing that special transportation arrangements will not be possible for me, specifically. I agree to arrive for the hike prepared with appropriate clothing & adequate food and water.
