UBCI LECTURE: “PROGRESSIVE CONFUCIANISM AND OUR GLOBAL FUTURE”
**************************************************************************

Confucianism is currently struggling to remake itself. This lecture draws on the work of various contemporary Confucians to argue that Confucianism both must see itself as progressive—in the sense of seeking progress toward ethical flourishing at both individual and social levels—and that, once it has done so, it can successfully play a positive role in envisioning and constructing a healthy and stable global order.

Presenter: Stephen Angle is Chair, College of East Asian Studies and Professor of Philosophy, Wesleyan University.

Date: Thursday, November 13
Time: 5:30 p.m.
Place: Park Hall 280, North Campus

Co-sponsored by UB’s Department of Philosophy

*************************************************************************
LECTURE: “VERSIONS OF A LIFE: THE ARTISTRY OF DALIT ACTIVISM”
**************************************************************************

The UB Department of English Juxtapositions Series invites you to a lecture by Christi A Merrill, Associate Professor of South Asian Literature and Postcolonial Theory, University of Michigan, and author of Riddles of Belonging: India in Translation and other Tales of Possession (Fordham, 2009)

Date: Monday, November 17
Time: 4:00
Place: Clemens Hall 306
